

ROYAL FLAIR NEWSLETTER MARCH 2020

G'Day everyone and welcome to our March newsletter. So, where do I start?

Of course with the virus issue and answers to a couple of questions being asked. In regard to our annual get together at Nagambie Lakes in Victoria (October 16th to 18th) it is still on the books. October is a long way away and by then we would hope the many restrictions that have been imposed will be gone. In conjunction with Royal Flair and Nagambie lakes Caravan Park, we will review the situation no later than the first week of September and keep you all up to date. At present we have over 40 vans registered and you can still register. No deposits are required until two weeks prior to the event, and, in the case of a sudden illness etc your deposit will be refunded. So, keep the registrations coming before we reach our limit.

Bill Deralas and Royal Flair staff send best wishes to all and remind everyone to keep safe where ever you are. Production continues at their factory with the limitations on area space to ensure vans on order can be completed where possible. Bill advises that as we go to press Royal Flair dealers are open at present but of course this could change. Please feel free to drop in on any of them, but again, please remember the two metre personal contact.

In the meantime please be aware most States have closed their borders, meaning no travelling. At the same time, some, including Victoria have prohibited any caravan travelling. You may have seen the post on our facebook page where the Victorian Police Minister has advised that police road blocks may be set up to monitor this.

So, what do we all do? Easter is coming, school holidays are on the way and normally we would be on the road enjoying our Royal Flair vans.

I am doing something a little different! We have a friend who has their van at our place so we are having a Happy Hour (or a few) outside the vans with a BBQ and some refreshments in garden surrounds. Sounds like a plan! That aside we all still have that great Aussie sense of humour. Mate of mine says he is planning to have a drink in each room of his house and call it a pub crawl. Another one is having an isolation party but not inviting anyone. Think I shall leave it alone at that!

In our last issue I mentioned we would allow an advert each month for a member selling their Royal Flair van. So, here is our first one from Suzi Hardwick in the Albury area.

OK, that's about all I have for our March issue. I appreciate it is unfortunate we are all having difficulties with the virus threat and can't get out and enjoy our Royal Flair vans. We are family, and, if anyone experiences a problem please post and let's see if we can help. From my family to our family keep safe! Until our April issue CHEERS REVERYONE!
